Russian investment fund is looking for opportunities in agriculture

According to information published by Reuters, Russian investment group Summa, which owns a half of Russian state grain trader United Grain Company (UGC), aims to expand beyond its traditional market of the Middle East. Summa purchased 50% minus one share of UGC stock last year for RUB 6 Bn (USD 194 M). Investment fund analyst confirm the commonly awaited trend of growing food consumption on the global scale with agriculture becoming an attractive investment to a larger scale.

AgroInvest comment: Russia will most likely consider Ukrainian market with potential investment as medium and smaller size companies are looking to sell.
